

DESCRIPTION

Did you ever think a question mark could turn into a cartoon? Well grab your pen because Bruce Blitz is going to show you how you can create cartoons from symbols!

MATERIALS

- pad of paper
- pencil
- marker
- colored chalks or colored pencils
- eraser

DIRECTIONS

1. Draw a question mark.
2. Draw 2 C's (one backwards) for eyes at the top point. The curve in the question mark will become a nose. Add 2 pupils and eyebrows facing up.
3. Draw hair and an ear underneath. Draw an outline for a face, extending down in a long oval.
4. Draw a question mark to the right of his face.
5. For the second cartoon, draw a percent sign with large circles for dots.
6. Use the top circle to create an eye. Make the eye half closed and add a pupil. Add an eyebrow facing up.
7. Add a pointy nose coming out of the front of the eye. From the bottom of the nose, draw a long, strong chin, making the line connect to the other circle.
8. Turn that circle into an ear by adding detail. Add a u shaped smile and close out the cheek. Open up the mouth and add a line in the center for his teeth.
9. Draw his tongue in the bottom half and darken in the rest. Turn the line from the percent sign into a sideburn.
10. Add in a big fluffy pompadour, connecting the necessary lines. Use back and forth strokes to color in his hair and show direction. His hair should look shiny and black.
11. Draw a music note next to his mouth to show he's singing. Use light blue to shade the background around his face; this will make him stand out. Color his face in peach, and use red for his tongue and cheeks.
