MATERIALS

- Various bead gems
- Elastic cord

DIRECTIONS

1. Arrange your jewelry by color and size. This will help you figure out what kind of pattern you want, if any.
2. Lay out your gems in the way you would like them to look on your necklace. You should try to make your necklace even on each side no matter how you design it.
3. Cut out a long piece of elastic cord. Make it longer than you think it should be to make sure you have enough.
4. Knot the cord at one end to prevent the beads/gems from falling off when you thread them. Start at one end of your gem pattern and string them one by one onto the cord in the order you'd like. You should space out your gems with smaller beads in between them so that they will hang right on the necklace. You may also have to cut off the very end of your cord every so often as you work to keep it from unraveling.
5. Once all of your beads and gems are strung in the way you like, tie the ends of your cord together, leaving enough room to fit the necklace over your head and neck, and cut off any excess. Now you can put on your necklace and be the bell of the ball!
